About: Pebble is a jam-rock band based in New York's Southern Finger Lakes Region. Pebble plays their own original music, weaving singer-songwriter stories through funky grooves, four-part harmonies and deep-space psychedelia, with plenty of musical improvisation to gel them together.

Biography: Formed by guitarist/songwriter Ben Borkowski and drummer Brent Clark from the band "Ben Borkowski & Friends," the welcomed addition of Andy Knapp and Tim O'Brien helped to materialize the sonic vision of Ben's repertoire. Each of them bring differing outside influences to their playing styles, adding an outward extension to the core of the music, together meandering in and out of melodies, song structures, and long musical tangents.
